The Official Journal of the United Firefighters Union of Australia

MEDIA KIT

THE AUSTRALIAN FIREFIGHTER

The United Firefighters Union of Australia (UFUA) represents more than 13,000 firefighters across Australia in continued campaigns to achieve improved working conditions for the men and women who confront dangerous and often life-threatening situations in their daily work.

The Australian Firefighter journal is published three times a year and contains features on news, training, food, travel and health. The journal provides an important forum to discuss concepts and ideas as well as dealing with the issues that affect the welfare and well-being of firefighters in general.

Your support is for the thousands of full-time career fighting members based in each state and territory of Australia, it is not about supporting a local volunteer brigade or the fire service itself. Your support acknowledges the daily courage of every one of our firefighting members and their dedication to risk their life to save another.

All advertising assistance is greatly appreciated and is essential for the ongoing support of this quality publication to continue the communication between the United Firefighters Union of Australia and its members.
